

“We’re Making History...Again”™

AAH Accented Home Wins National Award

For Immediate Release

Waynesville, NC (February 12, 2009) – Appalachian Antique Hardwoods provided rustic materials for the home that won first runner-up in the over 2,500 sq. ft. category in Log Home Living’s 11th Annual National Floor Plan Design Contest. The home was selected from over 250 entries that ranged in size, building materials, style and function.

http://www.loghome.com/floor_plan_design_contest_runners_up/articles/2966

The contest’s panel of judges focused primarily on the floor plan design and its creativity, uniqueness, functionality and the overall use of materials that celebrates the flexibility of rustic design. The AAH plan called “The Rose” was a 2,610 sq. ft. plan that mixed hand-crafted flare bottom cedar logs with Appalachian Antique Hardwoods’ rustic materials.

The exterior of the home was accented with WeatherPlank® Barnsiding, Recycled Cedar Shakes, and Rustic Rail® porch railings. Appalachian Antique Hardwoods’ Weather Plank® Barnsiding was selected due to its unique variety of natural colors and variable dimensions that created the rustic look of a timeless classic. The Recycled Cedar Shakes were used to add a rustic element to the gables, creating a dynamic rustic feel as you approach the home. The home’s interior was finished with Heritage Oak® flooring from Appalachian Antique Hardwoods’ Cold Mountain Collection, while window and door trim and ceilings utilized WeatherPlank® Barnsiding as final touch to add character and authenticity to the overall project.

“We are extremely excited to support our clients in their efforts to create and build custom rustic homes. The fact that they are commonly recognized by leading “Rustic Lifestyle” publications is a testament to what we do as a company as well. This award represents our core mission in that it recognizes what accenting a new hybrid wood home with Appalachian Antique Hardwoods materials can do for overall curb appeal and resale value. My goal is to make our clients look as good as we possibly can through high quality materials at a fair price from a Professional Organization” says Company President Zac Guy.

Appalachian Antique Hardwoods, LLC is a North Carolina based company that has been providing the highest quality reclaimed, recycled and renewable wood products available since 1994 – www.aahardwoods.com. Appalachian Antique Hardwoods offers over three thousand recycled products making them the largest single point selection for antique wood and reclaimed wood products in the country.